From Carolina Academic Press : National Security Law Documents before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised National Security Law Documents:

A unique volume of documents, this book is a companion volume to the casebook National Security Law. It brings together a wealth of documents ranging from President George Washingtons Farewell Address and George Kennans Long Telegram to important international conventions, domestic laws, executive orders, and departmental regulations on such matters as FBI counter-terrorism investigations and State Department treaty procedures. It is designed to serve as a standard desk reference for both scholars and practitioners interested in these issues.

About the Author John Norton Moore is the Director of both the Center for Oceans Law and Policy and the Center for National Security Law and is the Walter L. Brown Professor of Law at the University of Virginia. Guy B. Roberts is the Legal Advisor for the U.S. Marine Corps and for the Commander-in-Chief, U.S. Pacific Command. Robert F. Turner is the Associate Director at the Center for National Security Law, University of Virginia School of Law.
