

[Online library] Research Handbook on International Competition Law (Research Handbooks in International Law Series)

Research Handbook on International Competition Law (Research Handbooks in International Law Series)

Ariel Ezrachi

*DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF | ePub

Download

Read Online

#4821436 in Books Edward Elgar Pub 2013-01-30 Original language: English 9.25 x 6.25 x 1.25, 2.35 #File Name: 0857934791616 pages | File size: 79.Mb

Ariel Ezrachi : Research Handbook on International Competition Law (Research Handbooks in International Law Series) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Research Handbook on International Competition Law (Research Handbooks in International Law Series):

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Competition Law....By Phillip Taylor

MBE[[VIDEOID:mo3KWXUJ5D4WC73]]AND THE DYNAMICS OF INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERATION AND NATIONAL ENFORCEMENT DISCUSSED IN 22 LEARNED ARTICLESAn appreciation by Phillip Taylor MBE and Elizabeth Taylor of Richmond Green ChambersSome thirty leading scholars, academics and practitioners have contributed twenty-two formidably thoughtful and readable articles to this scholarly and topical book on competition law. Like many a work of research from the Edward Elgar publishing house, the international dimension is stressed; in this case for fairly obvious reasons. Competition has to prevail in a healthy, consumer-friendly economy and legal measures to curb anti-competitive activity which impedes or stifles it must be implemented and enforced. However, the mind-blowingly Byzantine complexity of the processes involved and the resulting pitfalls, problems and possible solutions reveal themselves in this book. The paradox central to competition law, or should we say in-built difficulty that attends it - is the wobbly alignment, or often non-alignment of what the book's editor Ariel Ezrachi (Director of the University of Oxford Centre for Competition Law and Policy), refers to as 'the dynamics of international cooperation and national enforcement'. 'While many markets are already cross-border, for the most part, legal systems are national.' says Philip Marsden, one of the contributors, Well, no surprise there of course, but therein lies the continuing dilemma that plagues competition lawyers and indeed anyone involved professionally in competition law. What competition lawyers - especially those in comparative law have to grapple with, says Marsden is a 'patchwork' of national regimes in a world of increasingly globalized markets, which can result in a failure to address such anti-competitive behaviour, as cartels, anti-competitive mergers and other private restrictions, with the resulting burdens almost inevitably passed on to consumers. In all, the book contains an extensive, thoroughly researched and meticulously footnoted selection of articles, designed to deliver much of the latest insights and perspectives on competition law worldwide. The wide range of subject matter extends from enforcement trends and advocacy, to competition law as it impinges on intellectual property and the pharmaceutical industry, to name only a few examples of the areas discussed. Especially useful for researchers are the extensive tables of cases and instruments from a range of jurisdictions worldwide. The more than 20 page index at the back aids navigation through the varied contents. As trade inevitably creeps across borders in a continually shrinking world, this book should be of abiding interest to competition lawyers everywhere as well as scholars, academics and competition officials and policy makers in trading nations. The subject matter is international and so is the book's utility and appeal.

The Research Handbook on International Competition Law brings together leading academics, practitioners and competition officials to discuss the most recent developments in international competition law and policy. This comprehensive Handbook explores the dynamics of international cooperation and national enforcement. It identifies initiatives that led to the current state of collaboration and also highlights current and future challenges. The Handbook features 22 contributions on topical subjects including: competition in developed and developing economies, enforcement trends, advocacy and regional and multinational cooperation. In addition, selected areas of law are explored from a comparative perspective. These include intellectual property and competition law, the pharmaceutical industry, merger control worldwide and the application of competition law to agreements and dominant market position. Presenting an overview of the current state of cooperation and convergence as well as a comparative analysis of substance and procedure, this authoritative Handbook will prove an invaluable reference tool for competition officials, practitioners and academics with an interest in competition law. Contributors include: A. Abbot, S. Anderman, D. Baker, C. Beaton Wells, U. Bernitz, B. Blumenthal, M. Carrier, T. Cheng, L. Copi, P. Evans, A. Ezrachi, A. Fels, H. Hollman, A. Jones, D. Kallay, I. Lianos, I. Maher, P. Marsden, K. McMahon, G. Monti, M. O Kane, J. Padila, A. Papadopoulos, H. Schmidt, D. Sokol, M. Stuck, F. Wagner-von Papp

'... within this collection of essays there are some real gems. ... the volume provides a wide-ranging assessment of many issues raised by the movement towards such a globalised approach.' -- Niamh Dunne, Cambridge Law 'Some 30 leading scholars, academics and practitioners have contributed 22 formidably thoughtful and readable articles to this scholarly and topical book on competition law. ... this book should be of abiding interest to competition lawyers everywhere as well as scholars, academics and competition officials and policymakers in trading nations. The subject matter is international and so is the book's utility and appeal.' -- Phillip Taylor MBE and Elizabeth Taylor, The Barrister Magazine About the Author Edited by Ariel Ezrachi, Director, University of Oxford Centre for Competition Law and Policy, UK