Michael Spak : Secured Transactions (Law School Legends Audio Series) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Secured Transactions (Law School Legends Audio Series):

By melaney
This man transformed me from a low confidence secured transaction exam taker into a confident exam taker. (I'm a believer now). I took notes on his little hand out and listened to him as many times as I could before my exam. Please purchase this, he is worth it. Retaining auditory knowledge is much easier than retaining visual things you read in the book. Spak gives you a hand out to follow, but not everything he says is on it, so just listen to what he says and write it down in the margins. I hated rewinding him over and over to write down what he was saying, but it helped things stick better.

much too fast. Useless for a law student. I returned it and got my money back. Most other Law School legend audio CD's I've been happy with. This professor just needs to learn to lecture in a slower pace so students can absorb and learn material.

Used for Bar Prep. Excellent study aid that is actually published by Barbri. As a result, it followed along with the Barbri outline to a substantial extent. It does not hit all of the nuances in the outline but it does give a great foundation.

This secured transactions audio lecture covers collateral, security interests between debtor and creditor, such as creation and attachment, between creditor and others, including perfection filing, possession, control, automatic, and temporary, and priorities of secured parties v. lien creditors. It also defines a perfected secured party, purchaser BIOC's, holder in due course rule, and secured party v. secured party purchase money security interests, fixtures, and accessions. Other subjects include rights upon default, including collection and enforcement by secured parties, possession and disposition by secured parties, noncompliance, acceptance of collateral in full or partial satisfaction, and application of proceeds of sale. The hand out is on Disc Four of the set as an Adobe file.
